Astutis: Empowering a Healthier, Safer, and Happier Workforce

In today's dynamic workplace environment, critical trends are reshaping HSE practices. More than ever, the interconnectivity between employee well-being, skills, and workplace safety is crucial in business performance.

For this year and into the future, Astutis is unwavering in our commitment to supporting you, your frontline workers, and your organisational leaders, as you prioritise health, safety, and environmental factors. We understand the ongoing changes to your workplace and are ready to adapt to these emerging trends, fostering a culture of continuous improvement and ensuring the well-being of your workforce. Your compliance and confidence in your roles are our top priorities.

Over the past three years, we've witnessed seismic shifts in how, where, and by whom workforce training is delivered. These shifts include the rise of remote work, the increasing use of digital platforms for training, and the growing importance of mental health support in the workplace. Our commitment to you extends to introducing initiatives emphasising different learning styles to support your workers' work-life balance. Our flexible study arrangements, regular learning check-ins, virtual classrooms, on-premise delivery and interactive self-study options create a corporate culture that actively supports your employees' emotional and psychological well-being.

The UK lost an anticipated 32.5 million days to work-related ill-health and non-fatal workplace injuries in 2022/2023. Sickness and illness are at a 10-year high, costing businesses and the economy 77.5 billion each year. Poor mental health is also estimated to cost UK taxpayers around £45 billion each year.

Effective health and safety compliance hinges on a capable, well-trained and highly attentive workforce, so we recognise the importance of prioritising knowledge that extends beyond conventional training.

We understand that many organisations' reliance on contractors is increasing. Therefore, the need for a healthy, safe workforce applies equally to your contractors as it does to your employees. For this reason, our training portfolio extends beyond our NEBOSH, IOSH, and IEMA qualifications to include other topics such as managing contractors and investigating incidents involving multiple parties.

Net-Zero Agenda

We believe that together, we can change perceptions and attitudes about sustainability's relevance and importance as a progressive force for good.

Over the next two years, we expect additional green jobs to be created, and existing jobs will need to be done in a greener way to ensure that all businesses are operating sustainably. Every individual will need to develop green skills, such as energy efficiency, waste management, and sustainable practices. That's why we are expanding our environmental and sustainability course portfolio to support new entrants and existing workers for their transition into more sustainable practices that are constantly emerging.

This is our opportunity to be a part of the solution for climate change, biodiversity loss, the plastic waste crisis, and other environmental challenges. Reaching net zero emissions by 2050 to address the decline in our natural environment can only be achieved with a well-trained environmentally conscious workforce.

I invite you to choose Astutis as your workplace training partner and join us in creating a workplace where safety, well-being, and productivity thrive. Together, we build a brighter future — one that will benefit everyone.

To avert the worst impacts of climate change, global temperature increase needs to be limited to 1.5°C above pre-industrial levels. To keep global warming to no more than 1.5°C, we need to work together to lower emissions by 45% by 2030 and reach net zero by 2050.

40% of the population may fall under the neurodiversity umbrella, emphasising the importance of accommodating diverse learning styles in our workplace environments.

NEBOSH Courses

LEARNING PARTNER

GOLD 807

National Examination Board in Occupational Safety and Health (NEBOSH) is a leader in health, safety and environmental management qualifications.

NEBOSH courses support the role of modern-day risk management and health and safety professionals, and help organisations meet their legal obligations. Over 168,000 NEBOSH qualification exams are taken every year, in over 132 countries.

NEBOSH provides Health and Safety training providers with the syllabus and exams for a number of different NEBOSH qualifications and training courses. Astutis are then able to provide accredited health and safety qualifications.

NEBOSH launched a new learning partner programme as a quality assurance scheme. It's a way to help health and safety professionals recognise the learning providers that go above and beyond in their delivery of NEBOSH courses. Astutis were awarded Gold Learning Partner status.

Our NEBOSH training courses are created in-house by our team of learning designers and are available in the following learning methods: NEBOSH Online, NEBOSH Virtual, NEBOSH Classroom and NEBOSH Distance courses.

Rob Canham, NEBOSH General Certificate Learner

"The qualifications I've gained through Astutis have allowed me to really develop myself as a practitioner. It made me feel that not only am I a SHEQ Manager, I can change the face of health and safety. A health and safety practitioner, to a lot of people, is this authoritarian person who just slams the rulebook on the table. I want to build a reputation as someone who can get a solution that benefits everyone whilst keeping workers safe."

Invest in your workforce, become a sustainable business.

Your course guide to becoming environmentally sustainable

18% of the UK's carbon emissions are from businesses. Under the Climate Change Act, it is a legal requirement in the UK to reach net-zero by 2050. Therefore, companies must start implementing an environmental policy or strategy.

Whilst many companies already have their sustainability strategy well underway, improving their operations, incorporating environmental job roles, and reducing their carbon output, most businesses are not ready. With the COVID-19 pandemic disrupting 'business as usual' for almost three years, it is understandable that many companies may well be behind with their environmental objectives.

Our mission is to reduce our carbon footprint.

At Astutis, we take immense pride in our position as industry leaders in health, safety and environmental training. When the pandemic hit the UK, we had to adapt quickly like thousands of other businesses. This event impacted us in many ways, but one of the most significant effects was the limited opportunity to deliver classroom courses to our customers.

Responding to the requests of our customers, we transitioned our classroom training into an online and digital offering pretty much overnight. Thankfully for us, our customers welcomed this change, as Online became the only way. Little did we know how this change would positively impact our carbon footprint. As a result of our tutors and our learners not needing to travel to classroom courses, together we saved approximately 1,650,000 travel miles last year - great news for planet earth.

Today, our mission is to support our customers further by expanding our range of online and virtual classroom courses. Our pride in our customer service means we will always strive to accommodate all learners, including those who feel online learning is not for them. This is why we introduced the Virtual Classroom, a fresh training experience, infusing the intimacy and traditional format of classroom learning with the sustainable and cost-effective benefits of virtual learning. The Virtual Classroom is not a Microsoft PowerPoint substitute. It moves the tutor-learner dynamic to the virtual setting; it eliminates the need for travel, making it an entirely environmentally friendly experience.

Leadership Skills and Training

Health and safety law places duties on today's leaders.

We believe it is imperative for business leaders to enhance their skills to lead safely and sustainably, as this directly impacts your organisational well-being and productivity.

Leaders equipped with a deep understanding of human behaviour and mental health are better positioned to foster a positive workplace culture, mitigate risks, and implement effective safety protocols.

By prioritizing these aspects, leaders not only ensure a safer work environment but also promote a culture of care and support, ultimately driving sustainable business success and employee satisfaction.

Accident and Incident Investigation Skills and Training

It is crucial for employees to possess skills in incident and accident investigation to ensure a safe and compliant workplace.

Skilled investigators can accurately identify root causes of incidents, uncover hidden hazards, and recommend effective corrective actions, thereby preventing future occurrences.

This proactive approach helps employers reduce workplace injuries and associated costs, including medical expenses, compensation claims, and potential legal liabilities.

Furthermore, a thorough investigation process promotes a culture of safety and accountability, enhances employee trust and morale, and aligns with regulatory requirements.

By investing in these skills, employers benefit from a safer, more productive workforce and a stronger reputation for prioritizing health and safety.

Wellbeing and Mental Health Skills and Training

Equipping employees with skills to protect wellbeing and understand factors affecting mental health is essential for fostering a resilient and productive workforce.

When employees are trained to recognise and address mental health issues, they can help create a supportive environment that mitigates stress, reduces absenteeism, and enhances overall job satisfaction.

Understanding these factors enables employees to identify early warning signs of mental health problems, offer appropriate support, and implement effective interventions.

For employers, this translates to numerous benefits, including higher employee retention rates, improved morale, and increased productivity. Additionally, a focus on mental health and wellbeing demonstrates a commitment to employee care, strengthening your organisation's reputation and compliance with health and safety regulations. This holistic approach to employee wellbeing ultimately drives your organisational success and sustainability.
